(This is almost literally the exact same email that we just sent them. We just changed the beginning to be congruent. This is like a surgical strike, with no real planning, just a quick cash infusion kind of thing you can run whenever you want to.)

Email #3. Sent the third day.

Subject: Bob, Last Day for Your Dog
(If you're selling gardening stuff you might say something like, "First name, last day for your tomatoes" – the key is to use the words, "last day.")

Hi Bob,

The special half-off sale for your dog's training system ends at midnight tomorrow.

Here's the full scoop: http://www.aperfectdog.com/thanks/Dog_.php
(I'm just recycling what I said in previous emails and getting right to the pitch.)

This rare half-off special is my way of saying 'THANK YOU' for taking action and doing what it takes to have a happy, healthy, and well-behaved dog.

This email is, again, literally just doing the same thing. This is not meant to be an exercise in creativity. Just cut, paste, modify, and watch the money come in. Trust me on this. Do not make it any harder than it is.

Now here's the only email where you have to do anything special, and it's really nothing particularly special. This is going to be sent on day number four at 12:01 a.m.; use your auto responder scheduling feature to do this.

Subject: BOB - FINAL NOTICE (You can also have an alternate subject if you like that says, "First name, only 24 hours left for your dog." And "Final Notice" is a real attention getter because we are so conditioned to respond in terms of paying bills.)

Believe it or not, there's nothing particularly revolutionary about this, other than to simply copy and paste and send. Once again, it's the exact same email that we've been sending, only it says, "Ends tonight."

So if you do these four days in a row, you're going to get a lot of traffic to your website, and you're going to get a lot of sales. It has worked for me every single time, plus it's worked for every single person I've ever shown it to. I've shown it to people in the software niche. I've shown it to people who sell health related products. And I've shown it to people who sell sports related products. And it's worked like crazy for every single one of them. In fact, my cousin Trey brought in $65,000 in one weekend (while he was on vacation) using this exact same method.

But there is a missing link, and that is the copy on your website. Below you will see the webpage that corresponds with the campaign we just ran. Notice I simply used my exact same normal sales letter, except for a slight change at the top.

The reason I have all this stuff at the top is because of the context in which they're coming to the website (getting half off). And then there is a link to the order form, just a regular old Clickbank order link it goes straight to Clickbank, and it's just the half price.

I went to killercovers.com and asked Vaughn Davidson (the guy who runs that site) to make a cover for my training course and all my bonuses, so I'd have something that looks really cool. But I would just rather you go ahead and hit go on this little campaign than spend a lot of time waiting for covers. You could run this campaign now, and then after you've run this sale get some covers made for your next one.

Try this. I promise you that it is going to make you money. You might be thinking this seems so simple or sales are cheesy…but who cares, just hit go, do this campaign and four days from now you'll have made some money!
